Dear Parents/Carers

Apologies for the letter sent out yesterday and the lack of explanation.

We are fortunate to live in a multi-faith society, which enables us to deepen our understanding of different religions. In RE, we have been learning about the various festivals and occasions, which are celebrated within different faiths and religions. This week, the children will be learning about Christianity and what happens when someone is baptised.

We recognise that not everyone has been baptised, but if your child has been baptised, maybe they could bring an artefact into school to share with their class. If any children have had another naming ceremony or any other special celebration, which they would like to tell us about, we warmly invite them to share this experience with us. Also, if any children have attended the baptism or naming ceremony of someone else, they could tell us about this. We appreciate that not all children will have been part of such an occasion but we are sure they will enjoy learning about the celebrations from each other.

I hope this explains what the children are learning about. Sorry for any confusion or upset that may have been caused from yesterday's letter.

Yours sincerely

KS1 Staff
